Coronavirus – expect consistent client service from Just

Just's infrastructure, business processes and systems have been designed to enable our staff to be fully productive at all times from anywhere in the world. All our staff have laptops and most work from home at least 1 day per week. This was a deliberate decision to enable a culture that places clients at the heart of our business.

It was therefore an easy and natural decision for us to implement a policy from Monday 16 March that actively encourages all our staff to work from home, while continuing to keep our office open for the few staff who find it more convenient to be at the office.

We have also encouraged our distribution team to continue their high standards of client service through various electronic forms of communication (preferably videolinks) to ensure that they are not the bearers of the virus given a role that traditionally requires significant travel. It would be very helpful if you could let your regular contact person know what form of electronic communication you find most convenient.

We look forward to continuing to provide your clients with a guaranteed lifetime income that will never reduce, regardless of how long they live or what happens to investment markets.

Please continue to use the communication channels available, and we will ensure you will have everything you need from us:
